AYCGL-OIE Chaperone Policy for Faculty/Staff-Led Study Abroad Programs

This policy is effective as of November 2022

- Chaperoned travel to and from the destination is available for students participating in all study abroad programs.

- The general expectation for study abroad is that students travel with the chaperone to and from the destination.

- Independent travel to or from the destination is an exception to the general rule or chaperoned travel for study abroad programs.

- The faculty/staff lead will determine whether or not independent travel is allowed for a student participating in their program.

- With the appropriate waiver created by the college’s attorney and signed by the student and parent, a student may travel unaccompanied to or from a destination.

- The waiver will release the college from care for the student and indicate that, while in transit, the student is not participating in a program of the college.
